University Service

University of Texas at Dallas

Administration, School of Economic, Political and Policy Sciences

Executive Vice-Dean, 2005-07:

Responsibilities

- Administrative, leadership and managerial support of strategic plans, of budget proposals, of account audits, expenditures, procurements, and compliance reports; and of special projects to enhance instructional and research program quality.
- Consultation, mediation, and resolution of (un)foreseen problems or conflicts.

- Enactment and review of policies and procedures involving faculty, classified staff, students, accounts and budgets, awards and contracts.
- Equipment and facility involving office, seminar, and common space needs and allocations; space survey completions; and information technology setups.
- Recruitment, training, evaluation, dismissal or retention, and promotion of classified staff.

Achievements

- Advisory support of faculty career development and external funding of research proposals; increased responsiveness to faculty needs in employment, payroll, and personnel processing, post-doctoral fellowship recruitment, graduate student-research assistant tuition and fee structures; faculty and graduate student office equipment and facilities, conference sponsorship needs, and additional travel support requests.
- Improvement of account tracking, fiscal oversight, and state audit record keeping; devolution of budget authority and responsibility to program offices to expand administration and management-learning opportunities in the School.
- Co-design of By-Laws in accordance with School needs and priorities, and with University policies and procedures, as well as of faculty third-year and sixth-year review procedures.
- Assistance in adding new classified staff and computer personnel; introduction of more informed and professional methods of determining classified staffing needs and of conducting annual performance reviews and merit recommendations; development of teamwork approach to functions and projects; implementation of professional development programs for classified staff and undergraduate student advisors.
- Improvement of Academic Computing support staff to include a Director, two Network Support Specialists, part-time computer specialists, and a Lab Manager.
- Assistance in expansion of School's research and instructional infrastructure by adding two seminar rooms, a second computer statistics laboratory, and computer hardware and software; by providing four academic program assistant offices to meet needs of program faculty and graduate students; and by effecting and equipping nine graduate student-teaching assistant office facilities.

Political Science Program Director, 2002-2005:

Responsibilities

- Represent Political Science within the planning and resource allocation processes of the School and the University, and advise Dean on Political Science needs, priorities, and trends.
- Coordinate faculty searches, recruitment, and review.
- Recruit, assign, and monitor senior lecturers, lecturers, and teaching assistants.
- Advise doctoral students on program planning, skill development, and career preparation;
- Schedule courses for Government and Politics Undergraduate Program and Political Science Doctoral Program.

Achievements

- Creation and implementation of a new, cohort, disciplinary and multidisciplinary, Political Science doctoral program; secured Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board approval in 2003 and successful Board Third-Year review in 2006.
- Design and implementation of first vision statement, management plans, and overall priorities and content involving research and Political Science doctoral education, and initiation of complementary Master's programs in Legal Studies, Legislative Affairs, and Political Science.
- Justification for and recruitment of five additional Political Science faculty members that increased the total from 9 to 14 in three years, as well as one Senior Lecturer.
- Recruitment and advice of three initial student cohorts, with a total of 43 doctoral students in Fall, 2006.

- Obtainment of program administrative assistant, two 35-student teaching assistant office rooms with computer and other equipment, and graduate student conference travel support;
- Integration of fast-tracking undergraduate program with graduate program, thereby allowing eligible undergraduate students to complete their program requirements and to bring their graduate coursework at the same time.
- Introduction and funding of opportunities for graduate student participation in the Essex/ECPR Summer School in Social Science Data Collection and Analysis, thereby significantly expanding their methodological and foreign-learning experiences.

Acting Dean, 2001:

Responsibilities

- Advocate for School within broader planning process of the university, working with other Deans, the Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost, and the Provost's Office staff.
- Intellectual leadership, strategic planning, and faculty appointments for School.
- Budgetary and administrative oversight – salary and maintenance and operations budgets, and computer laboratory, conference, and faculty equipment and facilities

Achievements

- Initiation of plans for an interactive experimental research and educational program in human judgment and decision making between the School of Human Development and the School of Social Sciences.
- Initiation of plans for a graduate education and research super-center to provide vital infrastructure for faculty proposal development, student support, and state-of-the-science research activities.
- Drafting of proposals and procedures for hiring new faculty in Crime and Justice Studies, Economics, Geographic Information Sciences, Political Science, and Sociology.
- Introduction of greater consultation and openness in budget, policy, and program development.
- Planning of new School conference and computer laboratory facilities for student seminars, research workshops, and faculty meetings.

Director of Graduate Studies, 1996-98.

Responsibilities and Achievements

- Advise Dean on program development, resource planning, faculty recruitment, retention and workload, and staff supervision.
- Schedule courses for Political Economy Ph.D. Program and Applied Economics, Geographic Information Sciences, Public Affairs, and Applied Sociology masters programs.
- Recruit, support, and monitor progress of doctoral students, and appoint and evaluate teaching assistants.
